

Hall's Advertisement

by Rudi Leandro

INT. OFFICE. DAY

MAN sits in a dull looking office, at an extremely untidy desk. The light is flickering, the air conditioning is noisy, his computer has crashed and worst of all; he is congested with a nasty cold. MAN strikes his computer in frustration, accidently knocking over a large pile of paper. He reaches down to pick up his work, and on his way back up he hits his head on the underside of his desk. Everything seems to be going wrong in this man's day. He sits back, takes a breath and reaches in to his pocket, revealing a packet of Hall's cough sweets. He eats a sweet.

EXT. FIELD. DAY

MAN is transported. He is lying down in a large, green, open field on a sunny day. Birds are singing, a light wind blows, MAN runs his hands through the grass, he is at peace. He takes a deep breath and is suddenly not congested anymore.

INT. OFFICE. DAY

Back to reality, MAN is sitting at his office desk. With a large smile on his face, he looks relieved. The desk is cleaner, the computer is fixed, he continues to work.

END.